(Pocket fluff) - Games are almost at the door. Paul McCartney is getting his hair ready and getting ready to give us a Wings track (they're just the band the Beatles could have been). Beckham is getting ready to ride a horse and Daniel Craig will amaze us with a soliloque from Shakespeare's sonnets. All the while a hundred British bulldogs will play the British Bulldog in the middle of the Olympic Stadium. That's at least what I imagine will happen. If you don't want to miss an extravaganza full of dogs, or the chance to witness Brian May's hair fire, online viewing is definitely an option. But where to do it? The government has already warned that ISPs and broadband speeds could suffer somewhat under the weight of the Olympic Games. Expect plenty of rotating buffer wheels to plague your laptop during events. However, if you have the connection, the BBC has an incredible amount of content on offer. Go to the BBC Sport website or fire iPlayer. The Live tab on the BBC Sport website is where most of the real excitement will happen, with coverage of everything that happens during the Games. C there is also a BBC Olympics app for smartphones and tablets and Smart TVs, which we put to the helm when it was announced in May. If you feel like reading it, check it out here. Alternatively, just download android apps here or for iPhone here. For things like TiVo and Smart TV, you should find them added to the relevant app stores. Another solution, if you're struggling to make progress with the BBC, is to use TVCatchup. The website is basically a way to stream various TV channels, pretty much all of them FreeView, on the web and even 3G on your phone. This means, however, that you are limited to the BBC's STANDARD channels offered on terrestrial TV and that you cannot use any of the smart services that the BBC Sport website runs. However, if you are looking for a way to watch the 100 meter finals and iPlayer is only cled, then TVCatchup could be a good alternativeiPlayer doesn't work for everyone. What if you didn't live in the UK? There are other options: take NBC for example, which has pretty much the same se-tup as the BBC except that it only works in the US. Pocket-lintA other options are for Google-specific events or to watch things on YouTube. It may be that you can't see things living immediately, but there's no doubt that something exciting will load almost instantly. If you are a Sky subscriber, another way to do things would be to watch the BBC's main coverage using the Sky Go app on tablet or desktop. This way you can even get a multi-room set-up going on, if some other people feel like watching different events. Pocket-lintf if you're a Sky subscriber but still have to try Sky Go, then go here. If you're someone who likes to watch watch online, but you don't want to pay for a streaming service that you're unlikely to use, you're not alone. There are many methods to watch free movies online, but not all of them are legal or safe. We've included a list below of the most trusted websites that allow you to watch movies online without spending a dime. Here's our list of the best places to go for a free (and secure) streaming fix. Additional guides The great Sony Crackle, Crackle or Crackle Plus Once players known simply as Crackle, this free streaming site has undergone almost as many name changes as P. Diddy. Initially controlled by Sony, it is now a joint venture between Sony and Chicken Soup for the Soul Entertainment (CSS). This partnership created a new entity called Crackle Plus, and it was believed that this would also become the name of the streaming service. However, a look at the site and it's clear that simplicity won; it's simply called Crackle. Whatever you call it, the service includes content from six ad-supported CSS streaming services (Popcornflix, Popcornflix Kids, Popcornflix Comedy, Frightpix, Españoiflix, and Trufl), as well as some Sony movies and TV shows. You'll find some low-budget quality hits like Election, Bernie, Coneheads and Train to Busan, and a generous smattering of dark but interesting B-movies. Crackle is a great resource, although continuous advertiser outages can get old pretty quickly. The service is offered in 21 countries, but has closed its Canadian, Latin American and Australian offerings. IMDb TV Newer at this roundup is amazon-owned IMDb TV (formerly known as FreeDive). It has free TV shows and movies and supported by advertising. In February 2020, the service acquired the rights to more than 20 disney-owned series, including Lost, Desperate Housewives, Malcolm in the Middle and My So-Called Life. It's also the only site that allows you to stream Lost and Malcolm in the Middle for free. Other TV shows in its relatively small bookstore include Psych, White Collar, 3rd Rock From the Sun and Schitt's Creek. It has a number of successful films, including the Hunger Games series, Groundhog Day, Isle of Dogs, Big Fish, Rudy, Glory and many other cult award winners and classics. You can watch IMDb TV on the web, Amazon Fire devices, and Apple TV, and through the Amazon Prime app that you can find on many smart TVs, tablets, and phones. IMDb TV is only in the United States for now, although a European expansion is in the works. Vudu, owned by Vudu Walmart, might be best known for its subscription streaming service, but the platform also has an impressive and free advertising content section. Titles like Ella Enchanted, The Preacher's Wife and The Hungover Games are good examples of what you'll find. If you take a cruise through the of the 4K/HDR title site, there are also one or two free-to-watch options. You'll still need a Vudu account, but you can create one for free. The Vudu app is already supported by a number of platforms, including Apple TVs, game consoles, and more. Also, there is an app for most mobile devices. Vudu is only available in the U.S. As it goes for a good deal: sign up for a library tab and get free downloads or movie streams, ad-free. This is the deal when you use Hoopla, a digital media streaming platform that has partnered with local libraries to let members access pre-available content online. It's similar to Overdrive, but with more than e-books and audiobooks. The availability of a certain title will depend on your location and the number of copies available for download, but we found some surprisingly decent movies when we checked in in October 2020. Streaming will work on any device with a browser, while downloads require the Hoopla app on a mobile device. Not all libraries currently support Hoopla, so be sure to ask. So far, libraries in the United States and Canada have access to Hoopla. YouTube This is a breeze. Everyone knows that YouTube is the biggest online video hosting service and you probably already use the site for stupid cat videos and footage of people being hit with training balls. But YouTube also has a sizable collection of long-term features on its free tier. Sure, most of these are B-list novelties, but there are some quality movies hiding in there. In addition to the free movies curated by Google, there are thousands of movies on the site that won't be presented unless you search for them directly. If you're looking for a particular title, especially an older one, it's worth doing a quick YouTube search to see if anyone posted it. These are not always uploaded by the movie's rights holders, and many of them are divided into episodes and playlists, but as they say, beggars can't be fools. Finding free movies on YouTube has become more difficult lately, as more rights holders choose to offer their movies for rent through the service, and YouTube also has subscription levels like YouTube Premium and its live TV streaming service, YouTube TV. However, you'll find plenty to watch, especially if your standards aren't too high when it comes to flow quality. Vimeo YouTube may be the biggest video hosting site, but Vimeo is probably the best. Yes, they are fighting words, but Vimeo has the muscle to support them. The site has a clean layout free of ads and benefits from an active user community that is widely considered more professional and constructive than YouTube's. Many great original short films and feature films emerge from this community. Vimeo also has an On-Demand section where users can purchase full movies and TV shows. Most of they are produced independently of Vimeo users, but some offers are also produced by major studios. Anyway, Vimeo is a great place to find free, high-quality movies. The Roku Channel When Roku initially launched its free and advertising-supported Roku channel, it was not technically eligible for this roundup because you had to have of the company's streaming media devices to see it. Roku devices certainly won't break the bank, but they're not free. Now, however, the Roku channel is available to anyone, via the web, as well as through the company's free apps for iOS and Android. The service boasts more than 10,000 titles to choose from, including old favourites such as The Sisterhood of the Traveling Pants and Donnie Darko, as well as a number of new and old TV series, from The Dick Van Dyke Show and Bewitched to The Bachelorette. You'll need to create a free Roku account before you can watch, but it's a quick and painless process. If you've ever decided to expand your choices, the Roku channel is now home to several premium membership options including Showtime, Epix, and Starz. The Roku channel is available in the United States and Canada. Plex Free Movies and TV Shows Plex is best known as a versatile and simple way to manage and watch your private collection of movies, music, photos and other media. However, in 2019 the company launched its own ad-supported free streaming service with a collection of movies and TV shows from studios such as MGM, Warner, Lionsgate and Legendary. It is available globally, although title selection will vary greatly by region. You can access the collection of movies and programs from a browser or on any of the huge devices that support Plex client software, such as Apple TV, Roku, smart TVs, etc. All you need is a free Plex account and you're good to go. For those who already use Plex as a media server, the free ad-supported options can be added to existing server categories, making the experience completely seamless. Pluto TV Although it may not be as well known as the above services, Pluto TV is still worthy of your attention. Not only does it host free movies on demand, but it's also a free live-TV streaming service, hosting curated content from across the web. While the channels vary greatly, we're focused here on movies. Pluto TV currently has multiple live movie channels, perfect if you want to watch something but don't know what. There are two generic movie channels, the rest focused on specific genres or categories, including action movies, Fury's action movies, 24/7 Horror, classic movies, black cinema, gravitas movies, and the asylum. The service works in the United States, as well as in many international locations. Pluto TV's on-demand movie library is relatively small and rotates frequently, but offers the variety as much as its live movie channels. It's also available on a lot of devices besides your computer, including Apple TV, Amazon Fire TV, Roku devices, and more. To learn more about Pluto TV, check out our comprehensive guide to the service. TV Tubes Another Tubi is very similar to Sony Crackle, as it offers both free movies and TV episodes. No matter what device you use, chances are you'll be able to watch Tubes, as it's available on Android, iOS, Roku, Apple TV, Amazon Fire TV, Smart TVs, Sony Smart TVs, PlayStation 4, Xbox One and the Web. As with the vast majority of the services on this list, you'll have to watch some commercials, but that's what keeps the service free. Tubi has content from over 200 partners, including NBCUniversal and Warner Bros., which brings with it nearly 400 classic titles such as Hell's Kitchen, Unsolved Mysteries, 3rd Rock From the Sun and The Real McCoy's, and the original version of 21 Jump Street. There are block hits such as Kick-Ass, Fury and 13 Going On 30, as well as cult classics such as 30 Days of Night, Donnie Darko and The Boondock Saints. Cult classics such as Assault on Precinct 13, Sleepaway Camp and C.H.U.D., along with cult classics such as 10 Cloverfield Lane and No Country for Old Men, can also be found in the growing catalog. If you're using this service to integrate Netflix rather than replace it, the Non-Netflix section will help you find new and interesting movies to watch. Independent movies and Kanopy documentaries Just like Hoopla, Kanopy is not only free to use, but is also ad-free if you have a library card. Originally founded in 2008 in Australia as an educational tool, Kanopy now offers a library of more than 30,000 films through its partnerships with more than 200 libraries. There's a strong focus on free independent movies and documentaries (the company also has access to many recent movies from the A24 catalog), but you'll find all kinds of movies available, and even more are coming thanks to a deal that will see director Fred Wiseman's entire catalog come to service. Kanopy is available internationally, but content may vary by location. The best documentaries Love documentaries? So are we. You know what they say, the truth is stranger than fiction. The Top Documentary Films, rightly titled, is, without hands, the best documentary site. Not all selections are throughout the film, but a good documentary doesn't have to be long – some of the best are under the 60-minute mark. Featuring a library of over 3,000 movies, the site also has a simple and straightforward layout and categorizes all of its movies by topic, making it easy to find something you're interested in right away. The content is not hosted by the site, but rather curated and incorporated by other sites such as YouTube, Vimeo, Daily Motion, etc. It is available internationally, but not all content will work in all locations. The sources for classic Archive.org are Chances are, you're reading this article because you're looking for a place to watch newly released movies online. While there's nothing wrong with that, you definitely shouldn't ignore all the great older movies the internet has to offer. Archive.org offers a true treasure trove of old movies you've probably never heard of, plus a handful you'll recognize. The Archive - which is also the home of the Wayback Machine that shows you what the Internet was like -- it has silent, silent movies, horror movies, dark science fiction movies, and an assortment of other movies. They may not have all the CGI fantasy we've all gotten used to, but the occasional return is a great way to mix things up. Open Culture Open Culture is designed to be your one-stop-shop for all things free and cultured. The site offers hundreds of free online lessons to sign up for, thousands of free ebooks to read, and hours of classes by prominent figures like Carl Sagan and Leonard Bernstein. It also offers loads of free movies. Here you'll find everything from silent movies and projects with Hitchcock's guidance to westerns and film noir. The site is also home to short films by legends such as Quentin Tarantino and Stanley Kubrick. Open Culture can be hard to navigate, but with over 1,000 free movies available, it's definitely worth slogging. Retrovision Retrovision is another public domain site that features hundreds of classic movies from different eras. The classic word might be interpreted - there are a few movies here that were only made last year, and not all retrovision movies are high quality - but there are still a lot of good things here. Retrovision is also a well-designed site that allows users to filter by gender. It's not limited to long-term shows either, as there's a solid collection of classic TV shows to choose from. Shocker Internet Drive-In Shocker Internet Drive-In is a bit niche, and its website looks like it was made in the 90s, but it's a great resource. The site is updated weekly with featured horror classics, which are then made available for free download as a WMV file at the website's Snack Bar. The site is a fun little blast from the past, with weekly shows framed in a digital drive-in. Users can also purchase DVD copies of any movie on the website for just $3. If you miss the old days of the internet when it was more like the Wild West and everything was less polished, this could be for you. The downside of so many different services available is that if you have a movie in mind but don't know where to watch it, you have plenty of different catalogs to wade through in the hope of finding it. Luckily, as long as you have a smartphone, you probably have access to a tool that can help you. Apple's TV app, available on iOS and several other platforms including Apple TV, Roku, Amazon Fire TV, as well as LG and Samsung smart TVs, allows you to search over 50 different streaming services. For Android users, the Google Play Movies & TV app offers similar features, even if the number of connected services is lower. Roku devices now have a Featured Free section that offers a curated selection of the best free content on the platform, regardless of whether or not you have installed a specific channel. This is to its existing cross-service search, although most of what you'll find will be available for purchase or rent or will be on a that requires a subscription. Anyway, while these tools can't guarantee that you'll find a way to watch what you're looking for for free, they can be a good place to start. Editors' recommendations Councils
